

ones who facilitated the amalgamation."

Cooperative governance and traditional affairs (Cogta) spokesperson Mammkeli Ngam said the department would continue to help the municipality.

Enoch Mgiijima spokesperson Fundile Feketshane said Tolashe was not accusing anyone but stating there was no amalgamation report, which she would have relied on while trying to solve problems at the municipality.

"The challenges in their majority are inherited from the [previous] municipalities and if appropriate support was given, things would have been managed differently. The municipality is engaging in various resource-mobilisation activities and establishing partnerships up the matter with both political and administrative leaders at Enoch Mgiijima.

"We will do that in the interest of mutual trust and good faith to foster friendly relations by assisting one another."

He said it was saddening to watch R21m worth of municipal assets being put under the hammer. They were auctioned off in June in an attempt to pay off a R58m debt to Milowo Trading for the construction of a hall.

The municipality owed the company R21-million for work done in 2012 but the amount had gathered interest over the years.

CHDM spokesperson Thobeka Mqamelo had not responded to e-mailed questions at the time of writing on Monday.

gun or use live ammunition during the party's fifth birthday bash in East London.

Malema has again insisted that he fired a toy gun on stage last Saturday at the Sisa Dukashe Stadium – and that the noise heard in a video was a firework display that occurred at the same time.

It was also the fifth time the party had done the "simulation", he said.

A video of the incident has been widely circulated on social media.

"It coincided with fireworks all the time in the celebration of the EFF. Unfortunately you are seeing it for the first time. There was no gun ... I will not even discharge a firearm amongst our own members, because I know how dangerous it is.

video. "There's a white police there in East London moves around with a camera who says to the forensics go and create the crime scene and then I will put this on ma said.

The host interjected framing?"

Malema replies: "I don't understand where does it come from, because if there's a genuine cartridge, you can see the scene and find it there."

"Why do you have to go to a crime scene?"

National police spokesperson Brigadier Vishnu Naidoo Monday said: "The matter is under investigation and we are not giving a blow-by-blow account of the investigation."
