Ingrid Moe Wold, capped 39 times for the women's team, said: "It's very good news which will make a huge difference for the conditions of women players in the national team".

Teammate Caroline Graham Hansen added: "This was maybe a small thing for you to do for us".

"This though means every- thing for us. For our team. For our sport." Norway's women's team, which won Olympic gold in 2000 having also claimed two European titles (1987, 1993) and one world crown (1995), are currently ranked 14th in Fifa rankings.

The men's team, is currently 73rd in Fifa standings.

"As for the women, we men are already very privileged," said men's captain Stefan Jo- hansen. — AFP

Federer stays chilled as 100 title milestone edges closer

TENNIS

ROGER Federer said yesterday he is pinching himself over a resurgent season that has added two more Grand Slams to the Swiss great's trophy case and put 100 career singles titles within reach.

Following an injury-plagued 2016 in which he failed to lift any hardware, Federer has thrived on a reduced schedule aimed at easing the strain on his 36-year-old bones.

"I couldn't be happier with this season, to be quite honest," the world number two said as preliminary play in the Shanghai Masters got under way.

"I'm just happy being here now, and it would be nice to pick up another title and get in training and start again the next year and get more chances then."

Looming in Shanghai is a potential clash in the final between Federer and Rafael Nadal, whose friendly rivalry has blossomed anew this
